Delphi

Exhaust Gas Temperature Sensor

Function

EGT (Exhaust Gas Temperature) Sensors measure the temperature of exhaust gases. They collect information about exhaust gas temperature and transmit it to the ECU, which uses this data to make informed decisions, such as adjusting the air-fuel mixture, timing, and other parameters.

Delphi

Multi-Airflow Sensor

What is a MAF sensor?

Mass Air Flow Sensor, it's more commonly known as a MAF sensor, air meter or sometimes simply MAF. It's responsible for just one, but still very important job: measuring the amount of air entering the engine. The ECU or PCM then uses this information to calculate the correct amount of fuel needed for an optimal air-fuel ratio.

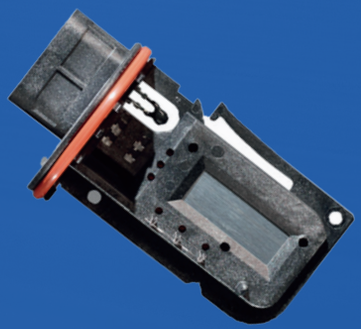
Why PHINIA?

We are Tier 1 OE supplier for MAF sensors

Our mass air flow sensors are designed and tested to meet or exceed OE requirements, and engineered for a perfect fit in more than 145 million vehicles on the road today in North America — including makes from Ford, Toyota, Nissan, Volkswagen, Hyundai, BMW, Honda, GM, Mazda, Subaru, Acura and more.

Built with all-new components, never remanufactured

All parts are tested and calibrated to OE standards using highly accurate OE equipment.



By testing to OE specifications, Delphi Technologies ensures that the sensors provide accurate readings and airflow output, which helps to reduce comebacks.

PHINIA MAF sensor designs provide low restriction air measurement for increased horsepower.

Multi-Airflow Sensor

What is a MAF sensor?

Mass Air Flow Sensor, it's more commonly known as a MAF sensor, air meter or sometimes simply MAF. It's responsible for just one, but still very important job: measuring the amount of air entering the engine. The ECU or PCM then uses this information to calculate the correct amount of fuel needed for an optimal air-fuel ratio.

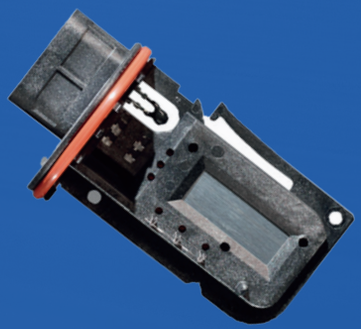
Why PHINIA?

We are Tier 1 OE supplier for MAF sensors

Our mass air flow sensors are designed and tested to meet or exceed OE requirements, and engineered for a perfect fit in more than 145 million vehicles on the road today in North America — including makes from Ford, Toyota, Nissan, Volkswagen, Hyundai, BMW, Honda, GM, Mazda, Subaru, Acura and more.

Built with all-new components, never remanufactured

All parts are tested and calibrated to OE standards using highly accurate OE equipment.



By testing to OE specifications, Delphi Technologies ensures that the sensors provide accurate readings and airflow output, which helps to reduce comebacks.

PHINIA MAF sensor designs provide low restriction air measurement for increased horsepower.

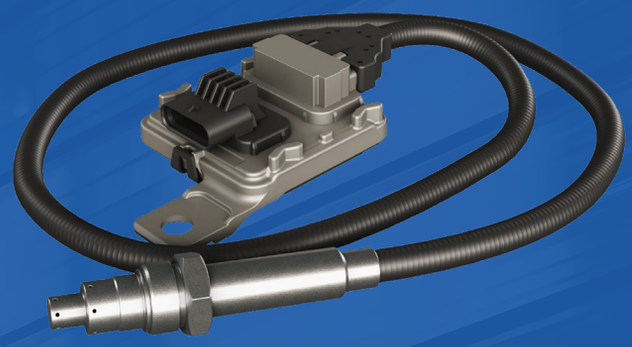
Delphi

Nitrogen Oxides Sensor



In response to growing environmental concerns, vehicle emissions are under the microscope. Tighter regulations demand more advanced emission control technologies. NOx sensors are the latest addition to our exhaust sensor portfolio. More than that, they are a testament to our collective commitment to a more sustainable future.

Function

The NOx Sensor is an integral part of the Selective Catalytic Reduction (SCR) system, which aims to reduce diesel emissions. The NOx sensor's primary task is to monitor the amount of nitrogen oxide being released into the air by the vehicle.

Why PHINIA?

HIGH-ACCURACY NOx DETECTION
0-3000 ppm for precise measurement of NOx levels, ensuring the accuracy of the signal output, critical for emission control and vehicle performance.

ADVANCED SENSING ELEMENT DESIGN
Three sensing element cavities, matching OE standards, ensure the measurement of "pure" NOx – which enhance the accuracy and reliability in comparison to traditional two-cavity designs.

PROVEN LONGEVITY
800 hours at 85°C in SCU testing, demonstrating extended lifespan, offering peace of mind and reduced maintenance.

ROAD-TESTED RELIABILITY
Validated under actual driving situations, confirming the sensor's reliability beyond controlled environments.

RESILIENT IN EXTREME CONDITIONS
Operational from -40°C to +850°C, which guarantees sensor functionality in a variety of harsh environments, maintaining performance where others falter.

REBUST REAL-WORLD TESTING
3-axis vibration tested, simulating real-world road conditions, delivering genuine reliability.

Oil Pressure Sensor

Function

The Oil Pressure Switch serves as a vital sensor that monitors the oil pressure within your engine. When the oil pressure drops below a certain point, the switch sends a signal to your car's computer system, which triggers the oil pressure warning light on your dashboard.
